Continued Examination Under 37 CFR 1.114

1. A request for continued examination under 37 CFR 1.114, including the fee set forth in 37 CFR 1.17(e), was filed in this application after final rejection. Since this application is eligible for continued examination under 37 CFR 1.114, and the fee set forth in 37 CFR 1.17(e) has been timely paid, the finality of the previous Office action has been withdrawn pursuant to 37 CFR 1.114. Applicant's submission filed on 8/29/11 has been entered.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

2. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

3. Claims 1, 5, 8, and 18 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Chau (5,870,087).

Regarding claim 1, Chau discloses a data independent clock signal (col. 16, lines 19-30), a memory 212 (col. 8, Lines 38-46), and a switchover device (206). Chau also states that the memory can be operated in different clock rates (col. 16, lines 31-42). Thus, the selected clock period can be used to reduce disturbances such as claimed.

Regarding claim 5, the clock signal in Chau is inherently synchronized with the A/V decoder.

Regarding claim 8, the clock in Chau is inherently synchronized with an external normal clock rate. (see col. 16, lines 19-30.)

Regarding claim 18, see Figure 3.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

4. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

5. Claims 2-4 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Chau (5,870,087) in view of Allen (5,652,627).

Regarding claims 2 and 3, Chau does not disclose the FIFO memory as claimed. Allen, from the similar field of endeavor, discloses the use of FIFO (34, 36) in a video decoder and an audio decoder (col. 3, lines 34-47). Allen teaches that using the FIFO memories, any disturbance or jitter caused by ATM transmission can be avoided (col. 9, lines 30-40). Hence, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time of the invention to include the FIFO memories of Allen into Chau so that the disturbances or jitters could be avoided.

Regarding claim 4, Allen teaches that the buffer can be any size (col. 9, lines 35-40). Thus, the period as claimed would have been an obvious design choice.

6. Claims 6 and 7 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Chau (5,870,087) in view of Nuber et al. (5,703,877).

Regarding claims 6 and 7, Chau does not teach the means for adjusting the received data stream to the clock rate of the clock signal as claimed. Nuber, from the similar field of endeavor, teaches a lip-sync control (Figure 2) by adjusting the clock rate to the buffers (see also col. 21, lines 1-8). By using the lip-sync control, the lip-sync problem as mentioned in the background of the invention is avoided. Since lip-sync problem is also inevitable in Chau, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time of the invention to include the lip-sync control of Nuber into Chau so that the lip-sync problems could be avoided.

Response to Arguments

7. Applicant's arguments with respect to the claims have been considered but are moot because the arguments do not apply to any of the references being used in the current rejection.
